

Natalie Hiller

Natalie became disabled when she was at university. Her disability affects walking and the use of her hands.

She wanted to show that disabled people could be intelligent or successful.

She became an accountant and works at PwC, which is a large accountancy company.

She is the co-chair of PwC's disability awareness network (DAWN).

Natalie has been working so that PwC now show pictures of disabled people at work in their leaflets and booklets.

She helps disabled people who work for PwC in this country and overseas.

She speaks at conferences.

Natalie is changing how people see disabled people in accountancy firms.

LinkedIn:
www.linkedin.com/in/natalie-hiller

Easy Read by easy-read-online.co.uk