Disability Power 100

Amy Francis-Smith RIBA ARB

Amy is a highly experienced architect.

An architect is someone who designs the plans for buildings.

Amy focuses on designing housing for disabled people.

Her strength to make change has come from her own disabilities.

Amy has:

- Been involved in lots of projects and worked with lots of companies, such as the BBC.

- Given talks to teach other people about opportunities for disabled people.

- Asked the Government to help make housing better for disabled people.

Amy has been put forward for a lot of awards for her work.
